

WHY CHOOSE US?

Specialists in the use of
Certified-Tissue Based Products

The Science

- Derived from the chorionic and amniotic layers of the placenta, these grafts contain growth factors, cytokines, and extracellular matrix components essential for cell proliferation, tissue regeneration, and angiogenesis (the formation of new blood vessels).
- These biological properties accelerate wound healing by reducing inflammation, promoting fibroblast activity, and enhancing collagen deposition.
- In addition to advanced therapies, we utilize allogeneic tissue derived from the chorion and amnion. These pluripotent cells are rich in growth factors, cytokines, and extracellular matrix components essential for cell proliferation, tissue regeneration, and angiogenesis (the formation of new blood vessels). Their powerful biological properties accelerate wound healing by reducing inflammation, stimulating fibroblast activity, and enhancing collagen deposition, ultimately promoting faster and more effective tissue repair.
